The screenshot shows the Visual Studio Code editor with a Python file named `app.py`. The code is a simple Flask application that returns "Hello World" at the root URL. The terminal window at the bottom shows the command prompt running the application with debug mode enabled. The output includes the Flask version, the debug mode status, and the server running on `http://127.0.0.1:5000`. The terminal also shows the server logs for the first three requests, all of which are successful (200 status code).
